Projects

MSRTC Bus Record Management System

GitHub

- Designed and maintained a structured system to store detailed records of buses, including mechanical components and related information for better organization.
- Organized all component data in a table-based format to clearly identify which bus uses which part and where each component is placed.
- Planned the data structure in a way that makes searching, updating, and managing records easier and more efficient.
- Improved overall record accuracy and clarity, helping support smoother maintenance tracking and better operational management.

Chit-Chat Web Application

GitHub

- Designed the concept of a real-time chat application focused on improving communication and interaction between users.
- Worked on core application features such as user login, profile creation, and message flow to ensure a smooth user experience.
- Structured the interface and navigation carefully so that users can easily understand and use the application.
- Observed user behavior and feedback to analyze usability issues and improve the overall flow and experience of the application.
